SUMMARY OF CONGRESS

Senate. Mr. Hale, from the committee on naval affairs, reported unfavorably and moved the indefinte postponement of the joint resolution introduced by Mr. McPherson, limiting the amount of money to be expended by the President on the Greely relief expedition to $500,000....Mr. Voorhees offered a resolution directing the secretary of the interior to withhold approval of selections of lands made by the Northern Pacific Railroad company within certain indemnity limits.... The Senate considered the McPherson banking bill and Mr. Bayard delivered an address in its support.

Mr. Sawyer called up the bill recently reported from the committee on postoffices and post roads, making all public roads and highways post routes, and after some amendment it was passed A resolution was agreed to directing the committee on finance to consider the expediency of providing by general legislation for the change of names of national banks, and to report by bill or otherwise at the present session... Mr. Logan introduced a bill to provide that persons honorably discharged from the military or naval service of the United States shall be preferred for appointment to civil offices, provided they are found to possess the necessary business capacity.

The Senate spent most of a day again discussing Mr. McPherson's National Bank Note bill and the proposed amendments to it. Mr. Plumb argued against the bill. He said the national debt should be paid off as soon as possible, and what was wanted was something to take the place of the bank cir-lation as it was withdrawn from time to time. He offerel an amendment providing for the issuing of treasury notes to take the place of the circulation of the banks as it is surrendered. Mr. Sherman's amendment, providing that if any of the bonds deposited bore interest higher than three per cent. additional notes should be issued equal to one-half the interest in excess of the three per cent. accruing before maturity, was voted

The House resumed the debate on the Mississippi contested election case of Chalmers against Manning. The monotony of the proceedings was broken by Mr. Curtin, who took Mr. Manning by the arm, led him to the bar of the House, and demanded that he be sworn as a member. Mr. Calkins raised a point of order, but the speaker said there was no necessity for deciding such a question, as the chair would not undertake to administer the oath of office to a person claiming to be a member elect, when the House itself was considering his right to the seat. The minority resolution. declaring Manning's credentials to be perfect, was rejected, 140 to 105. The majority resolution, discharging the committee on elections from consideration of the prima facie case, and leaving the seat vacant until the case was decided on its merits, was then

The last English census reveals the encouraging fact that the proportion of the blind to the population has decreased with each successive enumera. tion since 1851, in which year account of them was taken for the first time. The decrease in the decade ending in 1881 was much greater than in either of the preceding decennial intervals the number of cases returned on this latter occasion being 22,832, equal to one blind person in every 1138. This decrease is fairly attributable to the progressive improvement in the surgical treatment of affections of the eye, and to the diminished prevalence among children of small-pox.

A MODERN RESURBECTION.

Mr. Frank Gilbert, in his new "Worlds in Miracle that Took Place in our Midst Unstroical and Actual," quotes the learned One of the most remarkable occurrences ever given to the public, which took place here in our midst, has just dome to our knowledge and will undoubtedly awaken as much surprise and attract as great attention as it has already in newspaper circles. The the sun and moon. The star only makes facts are, briefly, as follows: Mr. William its appearance every 315 years. It will A. Cromble, a young man formerly residing at Birmingham, a suburb of Detroit, and now living at 257 Michigan avenue, in this city, can truthfully say that he has looked opposition to the sun, and therefore near- into the future world and yet returned to er to the sun and brightest. My head felt dull and heavy; my eyesight did not seem so clear as formerly; my appetite was uncertain and I finally disappear, and not return to our to arise in the morning and yet I cou'd not sleep at night. My mouth tasted badly, had a faint all-gone sensation in the pit of my stomach that food did not at sfy, while iny hands and feet felt cold and claminy. I was nervous and irritable, and lost all enthusiasm. At times my head would seem to whirl and my heart pa pitated terribly. hal no energy, no ambition, and I seemed indifferent of the present and thought ess for the future. I tried to shake the feeling o'l and persuade myself it was simply a coll of a little malaria. But it would not go. I was determined not to give up, and so time [as ed along and all the while I was getting worse. A lady with a daughter of uncertain It was about this time that I noticed I had beage, gave out that she was only 20. At a gun to bloat fearfully. My limbs were swollen so that by pressing my fingers upon them deep depressions would be made. My face also began to en'arge, an I continued to until I could scarcely see out of my eyes. One of my friends, describing my appearance at that time, said: 'It is an a simated something, but I should like to know what.' In this condition I passed several weeks of the greatest agony. " Finally, one Saturday night, the misery

I became irrational and apparently insensible. Cold sweat gathered on my forehead; my eyes became glazed and my throat rattled. I seemed to be in another sphere and with other surroundings. I knew nothing of what occurred around me, although "Of course, Madam, of course: for I've I have since learned it was considered as death by those who stood by. It was to me a quiet state, and yet one of great agony. I was helpless, hopeless and pain was my only companion. I remember trying to see what was beyond me, but the mist before my eyes was too great. I tried to reason, but I had lost all power. I felt that it was death, and rea ized how terrible it was. At last the strain upon my min I gave way and all was a blank. How long this continued I do not know, but at last I realized the presence of friends and recognized my mother. I then thought it was earth, but was not certain. I ever, and the pain les ened. "Yes, I think I have," was the reply, and it has been a valuable lesson to me. am certain, though, there are thou ands of men and women at this very moment who have the same ailment which came so near killing me, and they do not know it. I be lieve kidney disease is the most deceptive trouble in the world. It comes like a thief in the night. It has no certain symptoms, but seems to attack each one differently. It is quiet, treacherous, an I all the more dangerous. It is killing more people, to-day, than any other one complaint. If I had the power I would warn the entire world against it and urge them to remove it from the system be-

One of the members of the firm of Whitehead & Mitchell, proprietors of the Birmingham Eccentric, paid a fraternal visit to this office yesterday, and in the course of conversation, Mr. Crombie's name was mentioned.
